Women Hurt in Spring Sabbath Accidents

AUTO MISHAPS MARRED FIRST SPRING SUNDAY

Mrs. George Hefley of Dixon and Elgin Wo- man are Injured

The first honest-to-goodness day of spring which put in appearance Sunday, saw every highway in this vicinity crowded with automobiles, and several accidents were reported. The most serious was one which befell Mr. and Mrs. George Hefley and Mrs. Lee Hefley, who were going to Sterling in a Ford sedan. Near the E. N. Detweiler farm on the Lincoln Highway, an Oldsmobile touring car driven by a Mr. Thompson of Sterling, pulled out of the line of traffic to pass the Hefley car. The Sterling driver misjudged his distance, his rear wheel catching the front wheel of the Ford sedan and throwing it into the ditch.

Mrs. George Hefley was badly cut about the arms and sustained a gash on the forehead. Sixteen stitches were required to close the deep cut on her arm. Her husband, who was driving, was badly shaken up but not seriously injured. Mrs. Lee Hefley escaped without injury. C. H. Stapleton of Clinton, Iowa, took the injured parties to their home in this city where they received the attention of a physician. The car was later towed to a garage for repairs.

Elgin Woman Injured.
Mrs. W. R. Switzer of Elgin is at the Dixon public hospital, suffering from a fracture of the left arm and a deep scalp wound, sustained in an automobile accident Saturday. Mrs. Switzer and daughter were coming toward Dixon on the Lincoln Highway and near the Harold Emmert farm home east of Nachusa, the daughter, who was driving the car, turned out to pass a truck. The automobile skidded, turning over in a ditch. Mrs. Switzer was hurled to the Dixon hospital, where she was given medical attention. The car was taken to a local garage, where repairs were made and was driven back to Elgin yesterday. The daughter escaped serious injury but was badly shaken up. Reports from the hospital this morning were to the effect that Mrs. Switzer was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Charles Popp, 514 Dixon avenue, with his family, narrowly escaped serious injury Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock on the River road near the Bennett farm, when he backed his car into a deep ditch. None of the passengers was injured but the car was badly damaged.

Crazed Moonshiner Battled with Police

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 14.—Alone in his home with his seven weeks old son, Anton Ulmonek, reputed to be a bootlegger, exchanged scores of shots with besieging police yesterday on his farm at Hodgkins, Ill., before he was finally subdued. Crazed by moonshine liquor, said to have been of his own distillation, Ulmonek threw his wife and two children through a closed window. Mrs. Ulmonek who had been cut by the glass, ran screaming to the neighbors who called LaGrange police. Ulmonek kept the police off, but was captured after he had boldly stepped out in front of the house and had fired point blank at Chief Matthews of the LaGrange force. The three policemen then grappled with the mad man and shackled him.

Gym Classes Upset Dope; Are Growing

Practically all gym classes are still bigger and better than ever and instead of decreasing, as is usual at this period of the season, are increasing. Friday the Senior Men's class was filled to capacity, a record crowd being on the floor, a record not only for this year but for several years past. The business men meet every Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday and their main attraction is volleyball. It's never too late to start. Another class that is hitting the high spots is the Junior "A" and they had a class Saturday morning that was close to the high water mark of recent years.

A. C. Phillips and son, C. N. Phillips, of Philadelphia, Pa., are in Dixon and expect to remain here for some time in the interest of oil prospecting in this locality.

Moline Man Fined for Speeding Near Drew's Sunday P. M.

State Motorcycle Officer Robert J. Card of Rock Falls arrested a resident of Moline Sunday afternoon, who gave the name of Frank R. Williams, and took him to the police station here for speeding on the Lincoln Highway. The motorcycle officer swore out a warrant before Justice A. H. Hanneken and Williams was assessed a fine of $25 and costs. The state officer declared that Williams was driving his auto at a rate of speed of 58 miles an hour at the turn at Drew's Corners. The Moline car did not carry 1924 license plates but the driver showed an application blank which showed that license had been applied for by Frank R. Hildebrand of Moline.

WARREN, O. PAPER TELLS OF DEATH OF MRS. ASA G. JUDD

Was One of Most Highly Regarded Women in That City.

The Warren, O., Tribune contains the following obituary notice of Mrs. Asa G. Judd, whose remains arrived in Dixon today:

The many friends of Mrs. Carrie Fuller Judd, wife of Asa G. Judd, regret very much to learn of her death which occurred this morning at 1:30 at the family residence, corner of South Park Ave. and South st., her death terminating an illness of nearly two and a half years during which she suffered with complications.

The passing of Mrs. Judd removes from the city one of its most highly regarded women, who had filled a responsible place in the church and social life of the community. She was born in Harding, Ill., on December 26, 1864, the daughter of Ashbill Fuller and the late Mrs. Fuller, pioneer residents of the city. She received her education in the schools of her home city, and twenty-five years ago came to Warren to reside. In her early youth she united with the Baptist church, and on taking up her residence here she became affiliated with the local church of that denomination.

She was an earnest worker in all of its departments and was the instructor of the Young Men's Bible Class, a work which she devoted much of her energy to and which held the first place in her church activities. A woman of fine personality and gracious character, a devoted wife and mother, her death brings sorrow to a wide circle of friends. She is survived by her husband, a son, Wallace F. Judd, of Youngstown, her father, and three sisters, Mrs. Mabel Loy, Clear Water, Kan.; Mrs. Edna Wing, Kenyon, Minn.; Mrs. Ethel Woolbert, Ottawa, Ill.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the First Baptist church, when Rev. C. Rich will officiate. On Sunday evening at 8:10 the remains will be shipped to Dixon, Ill., where a short burial service will take place preceding the interment in the cemetery at Dixon.

THAW'S SON IS ALLOWED TO AID FIGHT UPON DAD

Court Allows Boy's Appearance in In- sanity Case.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Philadelphia, April 14.—Russell William Thaw, claimed to be the 13-year-old son of Harry K. Thaw, was today allowed to intervene through a guardian, in the Thaw insanity proceedings which began today.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Philadelphia, April 14.—Another legal battle made in behalf of Harry K. Thaw after he shot and killed Stanford White, 13 years ago, is scheduled to start in common pleas court today. An effort will be made to convince a jury that he is sane and obtain his release from the Philadelphia Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases.

Unexpected opposition to Thaw's petition for release developed Saturday when his divorced wife, Evelyn Nesbit, filed a petition to intervene in the proceedings in behalf of her son, Russell Thaw, whose alleged interest in Thaw's estate, she declared, would be jeopardized should he be given his freedom. Counsel for Thaw asserts that the divorce proceeding decided the boy was not Thaw's son.

Brundage Wants to Succeed Carter on Ill. Supreme Court

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 14.—Attorney General E. J. Brundage for the Illinois supreme court bench and the chairmanship of the Cook County republican committee were among the more important questions at the republican county convention held today. The sending of a delegation friendly or hostile to Governor Small, to the state convention at Springfield Friday was another issue for decision.

Attorney General Brundage is understood to seek to be named as the agreed candidate of all local republican factions to succeed Justice O. N. Carter from the seventh judicial district.

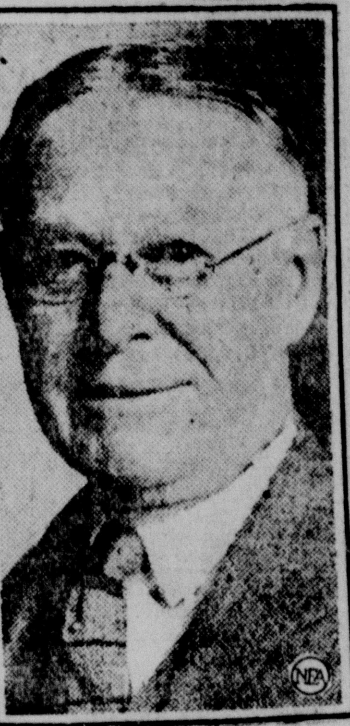

The attorney general's opponents are said to plan to have the judicial convention on April 22 postponed to allow time for further consideration. The democratic county convention meets this afternoon. The democratic chiefs were said to be agreed to oppose Gov. Small's re-election by using the same ammunition used by his unsuccessful opponent, State Senator Eschington, who the governor defeated for the republican gubernatorial nomination.

STORM CENTER

Francis J. Heney, who won fame as prosecutor in the San Francisco graft cases, again pops into the limelight through his appointment by Senator Couzens, Michigan, as a special examiner in alleged tax fraud matters. It was this that drew from President Coolidge a special message to the senate protesting against "government by investigation."

HELL CREATION OF MAN SAYS LAMKIN IN SUNDAY SERMON

Only Thing God Has No Part in Declares Bap- tist Pastor.

(Contributed.)

Sunday was a great day for the revival at the Baptist church. The morning service was replete with the finest music. The large chorus outfit sang "Palm Branches." Mr. Koitzman sang "Open the Gates of the Temple" to the great delight of the people, while Mr. Ekstrom of Chicago, sang in his superb and characteristic way, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel." Mrs. Stephan the organist, rendered the most inspiring and exquisite music. The organ never sounded so sweetly as it did yesterday.

Dr. Lamkin preached on "The Human Side of Jesus." It was a tender portrayal of the voluntary and deliberate sacrifice of the young manhood of Jesus, at a time when life is the dearest and a man wants to live. We can never appreciate that sacrifice till we realize the human side of Christ's life.

At the evening service the house was well filled and the large chorus sang with great enthusiasm and inspiration. Mr. Ekstrom's leadership has proved a great attraction to the people and is helping to give the meetings a great spiritual impulse. The people are delighted with him. Everybody should come and enjoy the music. The solo he sang at the evening service was impressive, tender and beautiful. The children's Booster Choir created great interest in the service.

Man Creates Hell.

Dr. Lamkin preached on "Hell, a Myth or Fact?" And showed that God did not create hell—that is one thing in this great universe that God did not create. But hell is self-created, self-determined and self-inflicted. So no one is to blame for hell but the man who goes there. He goes in spite of God's efforts to save him.

One great victory of the day was the organization of a B. Y. P. U. The young people of the church are coming to the front. Clifford Potts was elected president and Miss Catherine Conibear was elected Secretary. There was great enthusiasm in the young people's meeting.

The service tonight will be one of very special interest. There will be special music under the leadership of Mr. Ekstrom. Dr. Lamkin has promised to preach on "men only," but will preach to both men and women tonight. Don't fail to hear it.

Tuesday night he will preach on "The Home." It will be a time for a great family gathering. Parents and children should come together, and sit together as families. Wednesday night the subject of the sermon will be "Mothers." Everybody should attend this service for we all have mothers. Everybody is asked to wear a white flower or ribbon that occasion in honor or memory of "Mother." A cordial welcome against everybody who will attend these services.

Mrs. Arthur Shuck was taken to the hospital Sunday for an emergency operation for appendicitis.

Ewert, Raymond Stavelly, Lyle Landis, Nick Gehler, Harold Detweiler, William Rannels, Michael McCabe, R. O. Holland, Leo Colson, George C. Fouser, Duke Shivers and William Downs.

The police have been instructed to enforce not only the city ordinances relative to traffic but the state automobile laws as well. Chief VanBibber stated this morning, "All manner of violation will be carefully checked up and the violators will be arrested and fined."

ILLINOIS MAN, KNOWN HERE, IS GIVEN ADVANCE

Carl Colvin Will Be Govt. Expert for Haiti July 1.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., April 14.—President Calvin Coolidge today advised Francis G. Blair, superintendent of public instruction that on request of the republic of Haiti, he had nominated Carl Colvin, the Illinois state superintendent of vocational agriculture, to be assistant agricultural engineer of Haiti, at an annual salary of $7,500.

In accepting Mr. Colvin's resignation today so he may accept the new position, Mr. Blair declared the appointment was won entirely and justly by merit. Mr. Colvin, he said, has established vocational agriculture in the high schools of Illinois and is known by this work in nearly all the state's high schools.

The Haitian government requested that he come at once, but Secretary of State Hughes, at Mr. Blair's request, secured a delay to permit Colvin to remain here until July 1.

PREMIER TENOR THRILLS DIXON PEOPLE SUNDAY

Schipa, Possessor of a Golden Voice, Held Audi- ence in Charm.

A fairly well filled house greeted Tito Schipa, premier lyric tenor of the Chicago Opera Co., when he gave his recital Sunday afternoon at the Dixon Theater. The assisting artist was Frederick Longas, pianist. To hear Schipa is a privilege, a joy of a musical life time, indeed.

The concert was sponsored by Oliver M. Rogers, I. B. Potter, Frank J. Cahill, A. W. Leland and L. E. Jacobson, and Dixon and the surrounding community owe these gentlemen a vote of appreciation for bringing an artist of this caliber here. Signor Schipa, who was a guest at the home of Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Burr, told Mrs. Burr last evening that he liked Dixon, that he rarely had a more enthusiastic audience, and that he would like to come back. That Dixon would enjoy having Schipa give a return engagement is unanimous. To be blessed with a gift as Schipa is, the gift of a golden voice, which gives such marvelous pleasure to his fellow men, lifting them above the cares and thoughts of the every-day world, to the borderland of the ideal and beautiful, is to be endowed, indeed, with genius. His voice is powerful and sweet and "golden" seems to describe the quality best.

In the Dixon Opera house yesterday were people from all the surrounding towns including DeKalb, Sterling, Ashton, etc.

Was Given Ovation

As Schipa stepped upon the stage he was given an ovation, and the audience, it seemed, waxed more enthusiastic after every wonderfully given number. Most of the program was given in Italian and Spanish, three numbers being in English and most of his encores, also, being given in English. "Nina" was a great favorite with the audience, and "The Dream" from Manon by Massenet will never be forgotten by the music lovers who heard Schipa sing it yesterday. He was generous with his encores, returning again and again, and eventually blowing a kiss to his admirers in true Italian style.

"Ave Maria," by Schipa, sung by Schipa, will ever be a beautiful memory, and the work of Mr. Longas, the pianist, is again commended highly in this selection.

"At Parting," by Rogers was to many the most trite and charming song of the afternoon, Schipa flooding the auditorium with a stream of golden melody in this plaintive love lyric.

In the second part of the program Harlequin's Serenade from "Pagliacci" by Leoncavallo drew forth storms of applause. During the entire recital as Tito Schipa sang, the house was so still that those seated well back in the house could hear the clock at the left of the stage ticking. He has a sunny smile, and a bright, winning personality, and is most unassuming. When giving his last curtain call Schipa drew Mr. Longas to his side and gave him a hearty slap on the shoulder showing his friendliness to his assistant and good fellowship between the two artists.

Is Great Accompanist

In Longas Signor Schipa has a wonderful accompanist, a true artist, playing the singer's accompaniments with rare interpretation and an intuition of his moods and needs, combined with musicianship of a high order. "Zapateado," his own composition, a bit florid in style, but most pleasing, was one of the treats of the afternoon.

At the close of the satisfying program, all too short it seemed, it was the consensus of all present, that they had spent a most delightful afternoon listening to this recital and hoped they might have the pleasure of hearing Schipa again.

Schipa, now in his thirty-fourth year, is in the prime of life, is married and has a child, his wife and child being at present in Daytona, Fla.

The police went down to the bridge and conducted an investigation, but were unable to find any trace of the woman of mystery.

FIGHT AGAINST MELLON PROBE TO BE PRESSED

If Allowed to Continue Unopposed Orgy of Gossip Will Follow

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, April 14.—The administration is preparing to renew with increased vigor its counter offensive against the fight on Secretary Mellon in the senate.

President Coolidge conferred all length today with the treasury secretary and with Senator Watson of Indiana, one of the administration senate leaders and chairman of the special committee investigating the Internal Revenue Bureau. It was indicated Senator Watson would make a speech in the senate probably tomorrow.

In renewing his request for action on his resolution to end the revenue bureau investigation, Senator Watson will reply to the statement issued last night by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania who suggested employment by the committee of E. J. Heney.

The impression was given in administration circles that the opposition to employment of Mr. Henery, lay much deeper than the technical legal grounds set forth by the President in his message, and that the fight against such step would be continued regardless of democratic proposals to make Mr. Henery's retention legal by a formal senate resolution.

The President pointed out in his message that to employ the famous California prosecutor with the understanding that his expenses would be paid out of the pocket of Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, would conflict with the revised statutes. There appeared to be a complete agreement today, however, that Mr. Henery's employment, under any circumstances, would not only be objectionable to the White House, but would be regarded by Mr. Coolidge, and Secretary Mellon as a proof that the inquiry was actuated by destructive and not constructive motives.

Mud-Slinging Campaign.
Senator Watson had charged such a step would mean that every piece of scandal and gossip in Washington would be dragged into public view, and that a "mud-slinging" campaign unparalleled in American history would result.

Beyond that, the President and his advisers appear completely convinced that is Mr. Heney is permitted to direct the course of the investigation it will amount to nothing less than a war to the knife between Mr. Mellon and the elements of his party represented for the moment by Senator Couzens and Governor Pinchot.

President Coolidge was told today by Mr. Mellon that the senate investigation had developed nothing that was not disclosed two years ago. The only result, he declared had been a serious breakdown in efficiency of the internal revenue bureau.

Pinchot Admits He is Behind Heney Being Picked as Prosecutor

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Harrisburg, Pa., April 14.—Governor Pinchot admits that he suggested Francis J. Heney as counsel for the senate committee investigating the Internal Revenue. The governor said last night he made the suggestion during a conversation with Senator Couzens regarding prohibition enforcement. He declared he had no "personal purpose or animus" in the matter but that what he was after was to get the law enforced.

He declared Senator Watson in his references during an address Saturday before the senate on prohibition enforcement had "overshot" himself and that "every self-respecting law abiding American must resent the spectacle of a United States senator publicly confessing that he does not expect the constitution to be obeyed."

MASS MEETING IN "SUNDAY-CLOSING" CAMPAIGN IS HELD

Chicago Reformer Gave Address at Methodist Church Last Eve.

(Contributed.)

An enthusiastic audience crowded the M. E. church Sunday evening for the mass meeting of Dixon's Sunday-closing campaign, and joined heartily in the song service led by the choir of the M. E. church. The speaker was Dr. W. S. Fleming of Chicago, Executive Secretary of the National Reform Association. Rev. Frank Brandt of Grace church led in prayer. Rev. Lloyd W. Walter of St. Paul's read the Scripture and Rev. G. E. Lair of the Congregationalist announced the benediction.
Rev. Aubrey E. Moon, pastor of the M. E. church, was in charge of the meeting and Henry Ahrens led the singing. At the close of Dr. Fleming's address the chairman said, "This speech will not close the matter. It is votes that count, and to stay at home means to vote against. There is no neutral ground. Christ said, 'I would that ye were either cold or hot.' If every one here votes 'yes' and brings two others to the polls who vote 'yes,' we will win."

Charged Lawlessness.
Dr. Fleming began his address with a statement of the battle to save America to the old flag—to what America used to be and what she must be. Then he quoted numerous well-known authorities to show the lawlessness and lack of morality in this country. The American Bar Association, in a report two years ago, said, "In major crimes this country is now the most lawless civilized nation on the planet." Thirty leading magazines in this country recently published articles on the general subject, "What is wrong with America?" The morals of America are in an appalling situation. Some think this to be a result of the World War and that it will pass over, but the American Bar Association is authority for the fact that the situation has been developing since 1890. The war may have aggravated it but did not produce it. Dr. Fleming illustrated with stories of facts about gambling, immorality among young people of high school age, obscene motion pictures, lascivious books, some parts of the public press giving propaganda which breaks down morality. The Sabbath Day question is only one part of the breakdown of morality.
Melting Pot a Cesspool.
America was willing to welcome every nation to her shores, to become a melting-pot of the nations and make them a new and finer race, but the melting-pot has not worked as it should and has instead become the cesspool of the universe. "Who helped produce this result? Those who do not believe in religion of any kind, those who do not believe in the Christian Sabbath because they have a Sabbath of their own, those who have European ideas, and the exponents of personal liberty."
Cardinal Gibbons, the greatest Roman Catholic ecclesiastical America has produced, said Dr. Fleming, in 1895 wrote that we must save the American Sabbath from being commercialized for amusement.
Personal liberty has never been fully enjoyed by more than two people in this world—Adam, before Mrs. Adam was born, and Robinson Crusoe before Friday came to the island. The presence of one other person stops personal liberty to just that extent. One has a right to do only what the law gives the right to do.
The Sabbath is the "day which the Lord has made" according to the Psalmist. The home and the Sabbath are the oldest institutions on earth. "The Sabbath day is a holy day, and should be so in Dixon. God made it for a particular purpose, rest and worship, and I rather think He knows what we need," continued Dr. Fleming.

Becoming Devil's Day.

It is rapidly becoming the Devil's day. Sunday laws were passed when this country was normal on moral matters, and now when sub-normal is a very poor time to change them.

The first written secular law on the Sabbath was in 354 A. D. made by the Romans to protect the rights of their working men. Every law in Europe and America—Roman, French, English or American—is for this purpose as it relates to Sabbath observance. Forty-eight states in our union have distinct laws protecting the Sabbath from encroachment, to give the workers a day of rest. Jesus Christ, the king of working men, the carpenter of Nazareth, is with the church in seeking to keep the Lord's Day.

The Devil seeks "to give workers a chance for enjoyment." He caused the war by starting a campaign of education in Germany thirty-five years ago. In America, he took the Bible from the schools, broke down the home, then turned to the church, but he could not break that. Then he thought of the upland motion picture started that, and then he put it on Sunday night. "Let the old folks go to church. Will have the young folks at the motion picture show. And in one hour and a half will undo all they learned in the morning, and when the old folks have gone to heaven, there will be no church, for the young folks will have been trained in the motion picture show."

Need Church in U. S.
We need the church in America. Business men require a letter of recommendation from a minister. Sunday as a holiday instead of a holy-day means a Monday of inefficiency in every factory in this country, and morality of men breaking down means that business is injured.
The movies are not everywhere, as some believe. Evanston with 40,000 never had them, neither Oak Park with 40,000, nor Champaign-Urbana with its 35,000, Bloomington, 30,000, Jacksonville, 20,000, Mattoon, 14,000. Beardstown with 8,000 has shut down its movies. "God help you to hold high ideals of your clean little City of Dixon, for this town has a good reputation in Illinois, in spite of its shows. God help you to keep it."

Dr. Fleming spoke of the value of childhood, the responsibility for these future citizens of city, state and nation. "Let them have movies six nights in the week, if the movies are clean."
We will have Sunday night church or Sunday night movies in Dixon. We will not long have both. Which will Dixon have? The church is the salvation of America. The Sunday night movie is not.
There are four great battles in America. The first was won when the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted, the others must put the Bible back in the public schools, bring back the American home and bring back the American Sabbath.

Christ is the only hope of America. He died upon the cross on Good Friday to lift us up. Will you, on Good Friday, crucify the Christ afresh, or will you vote to make the Christ triumphant in Dixon? Or will you vote to make Sunday the devil's day? Dr. Fleming went to Chicago this morning to spend a few days with his family before returning to Iowa.

THE FELLOW WHO TRIED— By Ray Hoppman.

We hear of the men who succeeded.
Who count their achievements with pride.
Who conquered the while they proceeded.

But what of the fellow who tried?

The mortal, discouraged and weary.
Who battled and strove night and day.
The fellow whose prospects were dreary.
Who tried but who fell by the way.

Who toiled with the faith of a pilgrim.
Who drifted along with the tide.
Who put forth the best that was in him.
But fell out of step in the stride.

Some mortals accumulate riches
And others win honor and fame.
Some crawl from the lowliest ditches
And come out ahead of the game.

While others have failed in the trying
With never a whimper or groan.
The seeds that they planted are dying.
The seeds that were carefully sown.

Some plod on with burdens encumbered
And some forge ahead like a cart.
Some try, though their chances are numbered.
And others fall down at the start.

A toast to the man who succeeded.
Who counts his achievements with
pride.
Who conquered the while he proceeded.
A cheer for the fellow who tried—

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Burns It Out.
To overheat your electric iron, by using it too continually without turning off the power or by letting it over-heat through forgetting it is turned on, will soon burn out your iron.

Care of Mattress.
A mattress should be brushed and beaten with a flat rattan beater at least once a month and should be aired and turned frequently.

Wall Paper.
Wall paper may easily be marred by hard rubbing when it is being cleaned.
Use a soft, perfectly clean cloth like outing flannel and rub with an even stroke, using little pressure.

Paper Towels.

Paper towels are economical and sanitary in the kitchen where a clean towel is needed many times a day.

Egg Yolks.

Egg yolks may be covered with water and kept for several days without drying or becoming unfit for use. It is well to change the water daily, however.

Rubber Gloves.

To clean rubber gloves wash them
in cold water and then boil for no longer than five minutes. Overboiling weakens their rubber.

Corduroy.

Corduroy should be washed in a suds of lukewarm water and soap.

After rinsing in several waters hang dripping on the line without wringing. When dry brush with a soft brush but do not iron.

Glass Jars.
Keep the small glass jars with covers in which you buy stick candy, and use them for storing spices and the like.

Care of Carpet.
After sweeping, it is a good plan to dust the carpet by going over it with a cloth, wrung very dry out of clear water to which a little ammonia has been added.

Helps Broom.

If an ew broom is plunged into a pail of hot water and allowed to remain until it is could it will have greater powers of endurance.

The lettuce, cheese, onions, pepper and olives are suggested as a salad for luncheon. But if you prefer to eat each ingredient plain and separately there is no reason for combining them.

In reply to a request this arrangement of the food for the day is made:
Breakfast—Grapefruit, bacon, toasted muffin, cup of hot skimmed milk.

Luncheon—Green pepper stuffed with cottage cheese combined with finely minced onions and olives served on a bed of lettuce, 2 small pieces whole wheat bread, 1 cup hot or cold skimmed milk.

Dinner—Broiled cod steak, artichoke, cream and orange salad, 1 gluten roll, ivory cream pudding, 1 cup hot water or weak tea or "demitasse" of coffee without sugar or cream.

If less food than this is needed my plan would be to reduce the amounts and omit the dessert. A varied diet is necessary to maintain good health.

IN A BOY'S POCKETS.

The pockets of small boys yield peculiar collections. Maybe you read about nine-year-old Arthur Parker, knocked down and run over by a taxi. In his pockets they found 5 tops, 73 brass buttons, 60 marbles, 2 oranges, a wooden cigaret holder, a pair of clappers,
10 cigarets, a mouth organ and a jew's-harp.
This will not surprise the mother of any healthy lad with normal tendencies. If there's anything amazing about Arthur's pockets,
it's that their contents didn't include a toad,
a couple of white rats, a quart of bright pebbles and several radio sets.

Spring is approaching, and boys are beginning to collect.

The small boy is close to the savage state.
His mania for collecting odds and ends of "junk" is inherited from the savage, who adorns himself with glass beads, feathers, etc.

The instinct of accumulation asserts itself in the lowest forms of human life. Civilization makes it more intense.

This accumulative instinct separates us from the animals. Crows and rats sometimes gather and hide queer collections. But as a rule the animal accumulates only what is actually needed to sustain life.

The squirrel works scientifically, hoarding nuts but not any more than will be needed during the winter. The ant has his storehouse of food. So does the bee. But the purpose of their accumulation is to keep them alive when food is scarce.

Man alone tries to accumulate more than he needs.

The way people fight for money, you'd think they expected to be here on earth for at least several thousand years. Does any of them ever get enough? Not so you can notice.

The savage with his glass beads, the boy with pockets crammed full of trash, the rich man struggling to acquire wealth that he no longer needs—all three have much in common.

It is wise and necessary to provide for emergency, old age and a "better chance" for the children. But when we pass a certain point in accumulating, the quest becomes an obsession and life loses its color.

A large part of the misery, friction, hatred and ill health of life is due directly to the mania for acquiring more wealth than we need. Life can be a very happy adventure and journey, if we enjoy ourselves as we go along instead of trying to hog everything in sight.

Thrift, carried to extremes, is a savage vice.

OIL.

Nature sometimes gets on the consumer's side, but not for long. Big gushers of the southern California oil pools glutted the market and smashed the price of gasoline. But an oil pool is like a quart of tobacco—holds just so much. Production of the southern California fields has dropped two-fifths from its peak.

It's about time for another big oil pool to be discovered. That's the way the system works.
Meantime there still is more oil than needed.
Scarcity is a long way distant, if at all.

EYE STRAIN.

Reading in a street car or on a train shortens life, claims Dr. Monaghan, New York's health commissioner. Every time the car lurches, tiny muscles are kept busy adjusting the eyes to the reading matter. Also, the lighting is "poor," Doc cautions. The strain impairs eyesight. And eyes out of order cause many nervous complications, including loss of vitality, in effect, shortening life.

People riding home from work, tired out after the day's toil, should relax the mind and nerves as well as the body.

CUSTOMERS.

The leading chain stores are doing a fifth more business than a year ago. Part of this represents higher prices. Part is due to their "cutting in" on individual retailers. A third cause is better business generally.

The dinner pail should be full of pie and cake this spring.

BORER.

The corn crop now is imperiled by the "borer" insect, just as cotton by the boll weevil.

The corn borer came from Europe. It was discovered first in our country in 1917 among broom corn of eastern Massachusetts. Attempts to "quarantine" it are failing. The borer is moving westward into the big corn belt at the rate of 100 miles a year. It is said to be the most difficult of plant life pests to combat.

A titanic struggle between man and insect life is getting under way. So far, insects have not become as great a menace as disease bacteria—plant life, cousins of toadstools.

VACANT.

A leading lawyer in Boston bought a radio phonograph attachment. Next morning he returned it, said he had tried it on his phonograph and it wouldn't work.

The clerk asked what kind of a radio set he had. The lawyer was amazed to learn that a separate radio set was necessary.

Most of us are dumbbells outside our immediate work, no matter how we may star
at the jobs we hold.

BENNETT'S JOB.

It's as difficult to stay at the top as it is to get there. The real hard work doesn't begin until a man establishes a high record that he is expected to live up to.

Arnold Bennett, the writer, in a year has turned out 335,000 words—including 224
short stories, a novel, two serials and a book of plays. This is only a thousand words a day, to be true, but it's high-class matter.
Writing real stuff is more exhausting than hard physical labor—in the long run. And it's as much a business as selling sausages or hardware.

MAGICIAN.

Carl Hertz, vaudeville headliner in England, left an estate of two million dollars. In 45 years of performing, his salary had totaled that much and $750,000 in addition. At the peak of his career he was paid $4500 a week.

Carl was an American. Our producers couldn't "see" him, so he had to go aboard for his opportunity. Geography has a lot to do with success. No wonder, Americans move so much from town to town and job to job.

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

President Coolidge's sons have applied for enrollment in the citizens' military training camp this summer. It will be the second year for the elder of the two boys, while the younger will get his first instruction in military subjects. What the Coolidge boys are doing should prove an object lesson for our other young men. No youth can employ a part of his summer vacation more profitably than by taking a course at some of the camps.
Physically, mentally, and morally he will derive advantages not to be found elsewhere.

BURNING.

The world now is producing as much coal as in 1913. This looks as if we're back to normal, for 1913 was a good average year and coal consumption is an excellent barometer of business activity. Better than pig iron output, some economists now think.

The joker is that coal consumption normally increases each year to keep pace with the world's growing needs. If the World War had not intervened, there'd be a much bigger demand for coal now. The war set the world back many years.

IF

America sold to other countries in February 33 million dollars worth of good more than it bought from them.

This leaves us to the good about 400 million dollars a year. Very fine—provided our foreign customers pay the difference. Any store keeper can sell unlimited amounts of merchandise "on time."

Naturally, the Turks refuse to let the women vote. We might do the same if our better halves were a voting majority.

Whatever a man soweth probably won't come up. But gardening is good exercise anyhow.

A word in the ear of congress. "Yes, but when are we going to have our taxes reduced?"

Russia plans to open the stock exchange;
but we don't plan to take any stock in Russia.

Nancy and Nick were playing in the garden.
Nick tried to lift a big stone out of the way, and finding it too heavy, picked up a little stone and tried to break it. Bang! bang! bang! he hammered three times.
Suddenly the big stone swung back
like a door and a funny little man appeared. "Who is knocking on my front door?" he cried.
"It was me!" cried Nick, "but honestly I didn't know it was anybody's door. It just looked like a stone to me."
"Humph! That's what it is to have mortar eyes," shouted the little man.
"If you had broken it, it would have taken a thousand fairies a thousand years to make another one just like it.
Who are you?"
"We're Nancy and Nick the Twins," said Nick. "And we are ever so sorry
we bothered you."
"That's all right. Your apology is accepted," said the little man, smiling suddenly. "I'm not as cross as I look.
I like children. My name is Muggs—Mister Muggs! And I have a magic automobile! And I'm just starting out for a ride. And I like company! And I have just room for two more if you squeeze. Would you like to come?"
"You're right, we would," shouted Nick.
"Yes, thank you, sir!" said nice little Nancy more politely.
"All right, then," declared Mister Muggs, jumping out of his doorway into the garden and whistling through his fingers.
Instantly a nice little automobile
came rolling out of the rosebushes (although the Twins had been there only a minute before and hadn't seen a sign of it) and stopped beside them.
And then, without anybody touching it, it opened its doors hospitably for them to enter.
"Where are we going?" asked Nancy.
"Oh, yes! I forgot to mention it," said Mister Muggs. "We are going to Once-Upon-a-Time Land."
"Once-Upon-a-Time Land?" exclaimed Nick. "What a funny name!"

MONDAY

Joy and Pain of Leadership

Read Matt. 21:33-46. Text 21:42. The stone which the builders rejected, the same was made the head of the corner.

"In the will of God there must be both joy and pain—the joy of carrying life forward and the pain that a Father must feel when his unselfish life and desire press up against the brutal selfishness of his human children."

MEDITATION: In many ways the life of Jesus must have been filled with joy, as when he saw a man even artificially yielding himself to the will of God and start living an unselfish life of the spirit. Along with this joy there was also the continued sorrow that many set themselves resolutely against the persuasive power of the love of God. Through it all there was this calm assurance that finally men in great multitudes would follow him and learn the secret of true living. When this is come Christ will be in truth "the head of the corner."

PERSONAL QUESTION: With
what kind of life am I able to oppose the brutal selfishness of man?
PRAYER: Our Father God, we pray that thou wilt fill our lives with the spirit of prayer; that holy aspiration may be rising within us day and night. May our lives be like well-wattered gardens, that through toil and cultivation we may yield rich fruit of fellowship in due season. Give us thy spirit in large measure through Christ
—Amen.

THE NUT CRACKER

WHERE MR. GIBBONS FALLS DOWN

At the present writing, Mr. Thomas Gibbons, the Irish settlement of St. Paul, is not inclined to take any stock in the popular theory that the world will beat a track to the workshop of skilled mechanics who deal in superior makes of mouse traps.

Less than a year ago Mr. Gibbons did something no other knuckle genius had ever been able to do; he fought fifteen rounds against Dempsey the Killer without pausing once to study intimately the texture of the canvas covering the Montana ring.

Mr. Gibbons, on the other collection of digits, is being looked upon merely as something to keep away from. It may be true that he made a name for himself but as Shakespeare said, you can't keep on buying liver and onions and shoes for the kids with a name.

Not only did Mr. Gibbons elude the Killer's knockout needle but he weav-ed his way through the full test without suffering a single knockdown. Up to that time a Dempsey opponent who lasted longer than a set of morals in Greenwich Village was looked upon as a cross between a super-man and a pair of brass suspenders.

As Dempsey's foremost challenger, Mr. Gibbons appears to be getting nowhere with great speed. Rickard had him matched and then unmatched him. Carpenter was going to battle him in July but changed his gorgeous mind. Senor Firpo tilts a Castilian eyebrow and inquires, "Who is this Gibbons person?"

Now what's the slow down, the sub-cellular slant on Mr. Gibbons? Why don't the promoters fall all over their banions trying to match him? Next to Dempsey he's the hot shot of the heavyweights, and this takes in Willis, Renault and all the rest. Yet Gibbons is farther away from the big money than Wales is from the bareback riding championship of England.

The answer is that Mr. Gibbons does not deal lavishly in the holism of pressagentry. He sides his left hook under a water bucket. He seems to think that if he gets out and does his work that is sufficient. And maybe it is—up to a point.

You realize that Mr. Gibbons lacks color when you discover after all these years that he has no fighting name. You read of Dempsey the Killer, Firpo the Wild Bull and Willis the Brown Panther. But when you read of the St. Paul man he is just Tommy Gibbons.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, say well-known druggists here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sallie Peck, employee of the Fair Deal Five & Ten, quarrels with the policeman sweetheart, Michael Curtis. This night she goes into the back yard to take down a washing for Ma Brennan, with whom Sallie lives. A crash shakes the earth and something strikes Sallie a blow on the head.

When she regains consciousness, the girl finds herself in strange surroundings. A French maid calls her Alva Copeland, and Madame Copeland, the richly gowned woman, claims her as her step-daughter.

Sallie discovers that she has fallen into the hands of crooks and is being substituted for the real Alva Copeland.

When a servant takes Sallie to the home of a gang of diamond thieves, because he thinks she is a member of the gang, Michael Curtis and Captain Trevor bring the police to the Copeland house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"She chided me for breaking in on her and then wanted to know what was going on and where her daughter-in-law was. She's a Tartar!" he whistled softly.

"That must be Mrs. Stanton Copeland," the captain replied. "I'll get the dog to go up and give her something to quiet her until we can send nurses in for her and her own physician."

"The doctor says there is very little time left," Trevor had risen and stepped back to whisper urgently to Mike. "For God's sake, find out what she can tell us of the Ferret and if she knows anything of that gang!"

A bit of bright color tinged Theresa's cheeks and her black eyes were brilliant but bluish shadows were gathering about her lips and a tell-tale dampness beaded her brow.

"Who killed Sloat, Theresa? Was it Quailers?" Mike bent over her once more. "What has become of the girl you had here, the one you call Beat?"

A spasm of pain crossed the woman's face.

"It was Fitch! For long have I known him even before we went abroad to bring mademoiselle home. He is young, handsome, he makes love to me and though I am old and ugly I—I respond. He desires that I get for him a position here—he is a footman of the best families—and last week I recommended him to my dame. He is installed here when we arrive home from the wreck and almost as soon as that girl comes to her senses again I see there is something between them! They look, they whisper together here in the hall, and then while I watch he slips a note under her door!"

The doctor had come from the bathroom with a glass in his hand and Theresa slipped from it weakly and rested for a moment with closed eyes but when they opened they flashed fire and her voice rang out strongly.

"I think then I shall go mad! He deceives me, this Fitch! I decide that I shall discover how much he deceives me, and where he goes for an hour so late each night, when he says it is to gamble, to play the card!

Saturday—Mon Dieu, was this only last night? For a moment it weakly waits for him around the corner—figure for yourself, a sedan for a footman!—and I am in despair but a taxi comes and still I follow.—Doctor, it is so cold!"

"You followed where?" Trevor demanded hoarsely as Mike laid his coat gently over her.

"A long, long way through many streets I do not know. The light was dying from her eyes and her voice had weakened once more.

"At last we come to a great park where there is a course of the golf and beyond rows of small, new houses scattered about and one great, old one of brown stone which stands by itself. It is there Fitch enters and I have not long to wait, for in ten, twenty minutes he comes from that house. This time there is no sedan and he walks while my taxi follows once more, but we lose him. It is no great matter for suddenly the park ends and I am in the city once more near an entrance of the subway but where I do not know. I am tired, I have learned nothing and I tell my chauffeur that we return here. When I arrive, Fitch has come before: there is a light under his door and I hear him walking—Doctor, the lights have gone out!"

"The end is near. Be quick!" the doctor cautioned in a whisper as he held the glass again to her lips.

"What happened tonight?" Mike motioned the almost distraught Trevor to silence.

"It is discover that the girl we have here is a thief and still I do not believe that Fitch, too, he is criminal!" Theresa's breath was coming in great gasps now. "Tonight, M'sieu Sloat he guards her door till the time comes to take her away and I myself come to the drug in her dinner that she may sleep—Fitch leave his room, he has a revolver in his hand, and one in the pocket of the hip—I watch over the stair-raft—he leap upon M'sieu Sloat, he strike him down!"

The voice ceased and only her stertorous breathing showed that Theresa still lived but she rallied once more.

"Fitch open the door—that girl, she is waiting—they go together! What is the hour, please?"

"A quarter to two. The doctor glanced at his watch.

"It is one hour and a half that they have been gone, then, for in but ten minutes the warning comes from M'sieu Sloat. At twenty-five minutes after midnight madame calls to me and I descend to receive—this! Theresa strove to lift her hand to her wounded side but it fell back limply. "They fear that I talk, you see, though I would have kept silent, but now you know—all!"

"Not all, Theresa!" Trevor cried as though by mere force of will he could hold her back from death. "There is something you haven't told us about that house in the park, where Fitch went! Think!"

"That house? The figures, M'sieu means? The figures of stone before the door, the lion and the bull which guard?" All at once she sat up with a ringing cry. "Frederick! Frederick!"

One of the detectives had sprung forward but all eyes were on Trevor as she slumped back upon her cushions and lay with a slight smile curving her thin lips.

"She's gone," the doctor rose. "Captain, shall I see to—?"

"Say, I know that house!" the detective who had thrust himself forward cried excitedly. "It's just beyond Van Cortlandt—an old mansion that used to be occupied by some count or other. A bald, little old geezer lives there now—"

"Come, then!" Mike roared and leaped for the stairs with Trevor behind him. "Bring all the men you can spare from here, Captain, for there's likely to be a battle! It's the headquarters of the gang!"

CHAPTER XII Sallie's Apology

SALLIE came to herself with a dull ache in her wrists, a throbbing pain in her head and the echo in her ears of a hoarse agonized voice which seemed to whisper over and over:

"Water! Water!"

She opened her eyes to stare up at a low, heavily beamed ceiling and slowly her gaze traveled about at ancient stone walls, a modern but damp concrete floor and a huge furnace, black and cold, which stood before her.

A cellar! How had she got here? Instinctively she tried to raise her hand to her bewildered head but the ache in her wrists sharpened to agony and she glanced down to find that they were bound tightly together. In a flash it all came back to her; the bald, weakened old man with the cold, bright eyes who had declared that she was not Diamond Beas, her own vehement agreement with that statement and all demand to be set free and the slow smile and shake of the head which answered her before the curt command came to take her away.

So there was someone there, after all! Sallie turned her body over and stared, transfixed.

On a canvas cot against the wall another girl lay, a girl with a mop of coal-black hair and great, burning eyes staring out of a wasted face.

"Hello," said Sallie. "Where did they catch you?"

"Well, whoever you are you look as though you needed it!" Sallie remarked. "Gotta see what I can do. Darn 'em, they've tied my ankles, too, but I ain't listened to anything. You watch me, sister!"

She lifted her bound arms to protect her head, unmindful of the tortured wrists, and deliberately rolled off the cot, landing on the hard floor with a thud which jarred every nerve in her body and made her set her teeth to avoid screaming. For a moment she lay still until the first racking pain had ceased and then started rolling over and over toward the furnace.

A little walling cry escaped from the other girl as she saw that Sallie was not approaching her but the latter gasped reassuringly:

"Just be patient! I'm coming back!"

Not for nothing had she tended the furnace which Ma Brennan had so proudly installed with her first insurance money acquired through the sudden demise of Mr. Aloysius Brennan beneath a wildcat engine. To be sure the clutter of the winter's furs might have been cleared away but Sallie judged that a household like this wasn't any too particular and where kindlings were used there was likely to be an ax to chop them.

She rounded the furnace, striking her head smartly against the cold iron as she did so, but the little exclamation which escaped her was one of exultation rather than pain, for there before her lay just the implement she sought. Its blade leaked dull and rusted but she was proof against all discouragement now and gritting her teeth as the cords cut deeply into her ankles she maneuvered, after heaving her lithe young body to a sitting posture, to wedge the head of the ax firmly between her feet with the blade uppermost.

Loading forward, Sallie sawed away at the cords about her wrists while the pathetic moan of the other girl came faintly to her ears. The ax was more dull even than she had anticipated but the strands separated one by one and at last her hands were free.

Insane Mother Made Effort to Kill Four Babies and Then Self

Aurora, Ill., April 12.—An Insane mother, who imagined that she and her family had lost their friends when they lost their farm and had to start anew as renters on another place, last night cut her throat and the throats of her four children at their home two miles south of Wheaton. The mother, Mrs. Sven Carlson, 30, will recover as will two of the children, but the babe of the family, Doris, aged four, is dead and a child, Theodore, aged 19, may not survive. The patients are at the Wheaton Health Resort.

Mrs. Carlson attempted the lives of her children after she had tucked them into bed. Then she turned the razor against herself.

The father was in the barn when his oldest boy ran screaming to him. Hastening to the house he found his wife and children lying unconscious in their blood.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN
PRESCOTT TO LESLIE
PRESCOTT

Well, dear, we got Syd over to his apartment yesterday, and last night I read him what that man told you about the coral god he sent you.

Syd told me that the Chinaman tried to tell him a long story when he bought it, explaining something of which he could not make head or tail. He told me to tell you that he hoped that he had not started you on the still hunt for some impossible ideal masculine member of humanity, and I told him, dear, that you had already found an impossible masculine member of humanity. At that he said he guessed everything was all right.

I was somewhat disappointed, dear heart, over your letter. I missed something from it. I wonder if it was because I am a little sensitive these days, that I am always looking for what is behind your words. Someway I felt some of the sincere spontaneity of you, some of the realness of you, was not in that letter. Darling, have I lost something by telling you that story? If I have, I shall wish I had never told it.

You see I am selfish, dear. I want to keep your love—now I know you're smiling at dear, intriguing, inscrutable smile of yours, that smile into which I read all my moods. Just now I am reading into it: "Jack, you want to eat your cake and have it too!"

I guess that's true, wife o' mine. We men are always naughty little boys, and it takes all your mother love to make us bearable, doesn't it? You know I love you, don't you? You know I've never loved any other woman but you—and here is the complex nature of man—I should never love any other woman but you even though I were untrue to you.

Some man told me the other day that a husband should never be frank with his wife, if he wanted to live happily he should never tell her the truth. If by telling you the truth, dear, I haven't gained more of your trust than I had before, if indeed I have lost some of it, I shall never be happy again.

You have made me very happy, Leslie—I don't know why I put that in the past tense. You are making me very happy. It's only I, myself—my own soul questionings, my own unworthiness—that makes me unhappy.

I'm sitting here at a table in the room where Syd is lying and I'm wondering just what he would say if he could read this letter. For of course you have learned before this, Leslie, dear, that Sydney Carton is a much stronger man than I. I can't conceive of him writing a letter to anyone like this one I am writing to you, and probably you can't conceive of him doing a thing that would, in time, make such a letter necessary to his peace of mind.

I'm never going to mention all this again, Leslie. I'm going to try and put it away in that place that you called "my forgettery." I'm coming home to you within a week, and immediately you and I are going to set sail for that beautiful land-of-beginning-again.

When I see you, I will tell you what Syd said about the little twin god. I sent some flowers to Mrs. Atherton. Poor girl! I think if I were a woman I would mourn more for a husband I didn't love than one I did love. There's a paradox, Leslie, that's almost feminine!

Good night, dear heart. I close your

RED STAR
Detroit Vapor
OIL STOVE

The new type, sanitary Red Star Oil Stove is like NO OTHER oil stove in the world.

Thousands of enthusiastic women already know this; but we want EVERY woman to know it. We want every woman to know why the Red Star is so different from other stoves; why it cooks as fast as gas, but uses oil for fuel.

The best way we can have every woman know this is to have them actually see a Red Star stove in operation.

Two things especially delight the women who see it.

Come in and let us give you a demonstration of this Remarkable Stove

A Special Representative from the factory in Detroit will be at the store all this week to demonstrate for you. Come in and meet him.

W. H. WARE, Hardware

One is the unusual beauty of the stove with its smooth flowing stream lines combined with the sanitary white porcelain and black enamel finish. The other is the absence of wicks or wick substitutes.

All this week we will have an actual demonstration of this wonderful oil stove at our store. We invite you to come. See how the patented burner vaporizes kerosene. See how wicks or wick substitutes have been abolished. See how two blue rings of clean, odorless flame are forced right against the bottom of the utensils—where the heat belongs. See how you regulate the flame just like a gas stove.

TELEPHONE "HELLO" BECOMING OBSOLETE

The familiar "Hello" is by degrees dying out in telephone practice. More and more telephone users are injecting personality into their salutations and answering "Mr. So-and-So speaking."

When Bell was making his early experiments he used the word "Ahoy" but "Hello" superseded it when the telephone got into practical use.

The word "Hello" originated in England, when wolf-hunting was the favorite sport of the gentry. French was the language of the court at that time so the wolf-hunters used the cry of the French hunter which was "Auloup!" meaning, to the wolf. This call heard from a distance sounded like "a-loo" but the English who always add the "H" sound to every possible word, shouted back "haloo."
